

Squirt Bottle Training

A stream of water in the face can be very shocking and unpleasant to a dog, just as it would be to us. Use a squirt bottle to train your dog that barking is not fun by squirting a stream at him while he is still barking. Timing is important so remember to use this technique while the dog is barking or immediately after so he can associate the two things. Once your dog is quiet and relaxed, praise him. As with any behavior and training method, it is always a good idea to consult a professional dog trainer for more information.
